Degree – Awarding Powers (DAP) and University Title (UT)

Leeds Beckett University has taught and research degree awarding powers and university title. This status was granted by Act of Parliament and is maintained through the university's ongoing compliance with i) the conditions of registration set by the sector regulator, The Office for students and ii) adherence to the core and common practices defined by the sector's designated quality assurance body, The Quality Assurance agency.

Taught degree-awarding powers (TDAP) give UK higher education providers the right to award bachelor's degrees with honours and other taught higher education qualifications up to levels 6/7 of The Framework for Higher Education Qualifications in England, Wales and Northern Ireland, and up to levels 10/11 in the Scottish Credit and Qualifications Framework.

Research degree-awarding powers give UK higher education providers with TDAP the right to award doctoral degrees and master's degrees where the research component (including a requirement to produce original work) is larger than the taught component when measured by student effort. These are higher education qualifications up to the levels 7/8 of The Framework for Higher Education Qualifications in England, Wales and Northern Ireland, and up to levels 11/12 in the Scottish Credit and Qualifications Framework.

The QAA published guidance about the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications here:

Dear Krishna Narayan Sah,

AWARD CERTIFICATE

Congratulations on achieving the award of Bachelor of Science . I am very pleased to enclose your award certificate which is the formal recognition of this achievement, and your diploma supplement, which provides a description of the nature, context, content and status of your studies. If you have a query relating to your certificate or diploma supplement, you can contact the Registration and Awards team, during business hours, using the contact details below.

We would also like to ask students graduating from undergraduate degrees for your help. You will be contacted within the next 15 months by an organisation called 'HESA' who will give you details of how to complete a short confidential survey relating to your employment status. We would be grateful if you would complete the survey questionnaire, as it helps us to keep track of the success of our graduates, and the sort of information it provides enables us to provide better support for our alumni. The results are also helpful in enabling us to ensure our courses meet the needs of our future students.

Yours sincerely,

University Secretary
